

More than a Movie. Marketing Rewired.

Initially focused on bringing arthouse films to the french market, Wayna Pitch also wants to bring the most innovative and creative projects to reality through international sales. We experiment new ways of making films by integrating the distribution strategy into the production and the artistic process. We believe that tomorrow's cinema marketing will have to be content driven, written by authors and shot at the same time as the film, to generate more engagement of the audience.

We would like to meet directors, producers and distributors to set up new ways to release and promote feature films internationally. We stand up for innovative and diversified cinema, open to young people. The artists are placed in the core of the communication process. Creativity above all! We would like to work with the production team before shooting in order to create promotional and engaging content that is synchronized across different territories.

THE UNPRETENTIOUS YOUNG LADIES

Directed by Fanny GUIARD-NOREL

By adapting Molière's Les Précieuses Ridicules with her students, Cécile thought she'd be rehabilitating those 17th-century women who were refused everything - access to knowledge, independence, work - and who, in spite of this, tried to emancipate themselves.
